Brave, kind, honest, caring, compassionate, trustworthy, humble, mature, dedicated, determined, intelligent, self-reflective, accountable, professional, relaxed, approachable, down to earth, supportive, genuine, real, funny. |

Please describe your attitude/philosophy in life.

- + Smash life; find happiness in the every day - no one beats the clock
- + Be fearless; dare to be your own person - there is only one you
- + Be selfless; sacrifice and compromise for those who mean the world to you - forgive those who don't
- + Laugh often; smiles are free - appreciate all that you have in life, and who you share it with
- + Lead from the front, with heart and by example - strive always to become a better version of yourself, and inspire others to do the same.

What do you think makes you unique?

The sum of life experiences accrued to date, from the multiple perspectives of a family member and friend, professional soldier and healthcare worker. The lens through which we see the world is shaped by the balancing influences of 'nature' and 'nurture' - how we think, feel, observe, hear, self-reflect, analyse, interpret, interact and respond in any given situation. It is important to challenge yourself, to know success and failure; in order to grow both personally and professionally. Life is a journey of continuous learning and self-development in itself.

How would you describe your childhood? And what value were you taught?

My childhood was never short on happiness or love; nor life lessons borne of sound wisdom and experience. I was taught the importance of the fundamental values I strive to live by; of standing up for what you believe in. I learned the virtues of self-respect, patience, tolerance, inclusiveness, forgiveness and perseverance; to be open-minded and non-judgemental. I was empowered to develop my physical, mental and emotional resilience; my abilities to understand and communicate with others, challenged by critical analysis & alternate perspective.

Who were the most influential people in your upbringing? And what were they like?

My beautiful family and friends have each had a significant influence on my upbringing, particularly my parents. They epitomised all of the values endeared to me, a constant source of love, strength and support. Both of my parents worked incredibly hard throughout their lives to provide for their children, and instilled in each of us an appreciation for what is deep and meaningful vs. the superficial with respect to unconditional love, relationships and the circle of life. They refused to give up on anyone, never lost hope, believed everyone deserved a chance and a fair go; the most selfless people I have ever known. Our bond is enduring and will transcend time.

Please explain why you wish to become a donor.

From an early age, I always wanted to bring a child into the world and had hoped to have a family of my own. Becoming a donor is a way of not resigning oneself to a fate that would otherwise be limited by societal expectations; a dream reserved only for traditional, nuclear family constructs. I would forever regret not having a child, one who could make their corner of the world a better place just for being who they are. A child who would be loved, adored, protected and nurtured by someone as much as I would; more than anything else in life.

Do you have a message for a child conceived from your donation?

You are the master of your fate and captain of your soul; live with love, compassion, courage, empathy and humility. Remain true to self for all of your days. Uphold what is right, protect the vulnerable - always. Align words with action. Lift others up, and give them reason to smile. The true purpose of life is to make a meaningful and lasting impact on the lives of those who matter most to us; to live, laugh and love unconditionally. I want you to know that you are loved - so much, that no one who has undertaken this journey could possibly imagine their life without you. I will carry you in my heart and thoughts forever, wherever I am in the world.
